To many, the condition of Recover Memory Syndrome only existed in theory. Julia and Erika didn't have the scars to show as physical evidence but knew that psychologically, their family had been ruined. If the two daughter told on their father as adults, what was keeping them from telling the police when they were little. It could have been lack of courage, weakness, and lack of the wisdom. The nature of memory has something to do with the Wright case and for the Ingrams. For example, two little girls were overshadowed so much by satanic wprhip and abuse from their father that it led them to believe that they weren't being hurt. Memory comes back to those who have freedom and the courage and knowledge to act. The Ingram case was proof that satanic ritual abuse was a rea thing.
